The buying and selling of goods is a matter of confidence. During the five years of our business life in this city we have steadily held to the idea that "Honesty pays the best." Not that we claim any superiority in that direction, but that our plan of doing business, he safeguards we have established for the protection of those who deal with us, in that we stand behind any and all goods we sell with this often-repeated guarantee, namely: If you buy anything of this house, and it is not as represented, either as to price, style or quality, return the goods to us and we will refund your money or make satisfactory settlement. This applies to any and all kinds of goods named in our heading to this advertisement.

It is useless for us to quote prices. We only say this: That our reputation for square and upright dealing is now pretty well established among those who have dealt with us. Our object in opening this GREAT DEPARTMENT HOUSE was to enable us to reduce the cost of doing business so that we could sell goods cheaper and Ninth Best Dozen Ears of Corn, $15; for the Tenth Best Dozen Ears still have a satisfactory margin left us as a profit. This has been of Corn, $10. Each of these premiums payable in either dry goods, demonstrated, and our business is now conducted on so close a system of profits, and the volume is so large, that we are satisfied with our CASH DISCOUNTS AS PROFITS. O Ve will mention one line of goods that we can get no more of, and that is we bought all the SECONDS AND SINGLE BLANKETS THAT THE BUFAL MILLS made this year, and on account of slight imperfections they are sold at one third off. Ask to see them.

We are taking a very active part in the New Era Exposition, to be held in St. Joseph from September 3 to October 5, for thirtythree days inclusive. In that we have given the farmer and cattlemen the "underhold" and have discarded for this time the horse jockey. Now it depends on the farmers whether you make this New Era a success. Washington Letter.

[From our regular correspondent.] Washington, September 6, 1889. Postmaster General Wanamaker has had several consultations with President Green of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and rumor says that a compromise between the Government and the telegraph company is on the eve of being effected. Mr. Wanamaker refuse: to confirm or deny the rumor. In reply to a direct question, he said: "I had nothing to say about the conversation with Mr. Green. There is nothing to be said publicly about a matter which is under private discussion."

The President on Priday settled one of the hardest fought contests for an office that has yet been fought before him by the appointment of Frank P. Clark to be Collector of Customs at El Paso, Texas. There were thirty-seven candidates in the field for this office and each of them has been, since the 4th of March, "bust ling" as only a Texan knows how to "hustle" to "get there." The man appointed has from the first been the choice of Secretary Windom for the place anfour times his commission has been sent to the President for his signature, but the other candidates by combining succeeded each time in preventing the attachment of the President's autograph thereto. This case gives a good idea of the trouble there is in filling the offices. All of the cabinet officers except. Secretaries Blaine and Rusk are now in the city, but it is probable that several of them will take short vacations during this month.

Secretary Tracy has several intriente problems to solve, and is compelled to days to come. He will first give hearings to both sides in the controversy over the battle ship "Texas" now on the stocks at the Norfolk Navy Yard. One side contends that if built on the present plans to contend to the present plans. Both cannot be right, and the amount of money invoived more than $2,000,000 makes the question a very important one. In addition to this the Secretary will try to arrive at ome conclusion regarding the completed, but unaccepted, vessels Vesuvius, Petrel and Charleston.

The National Museum here has just been presented with two interesting war relies. One is the gun-a light doublebarreled fowling piece with which Col. Ellsworth, of the New York Zouaves, was killed on the steps of the Marshall House in Alexandria, Virginia, as he was return ing from the roof whither he had gone to remove a Confederate flag; and the other is the old-fashioned army musket, with sword bayonet, with which the slayer of Ellsworth was shot and afterwards pinned to the floor by Private Brownell. The weapons were presented to the Masenm by Mr. Brownell in whose posses don they have been since the unfortu nate tragedy, which at the time of its oc currence May 21, 1861 - created a profound sensation throughout the United

What with woman-beating and woman nurdering, man seems to be pretty much of a brute. Friday, within an hour, were hung four men for killing women. One of thewretches had been long a wife beater, but finally cut her throat. The night before she refused to give him money that he might indulge in a debauch, and the devil in hir, roused into fury at the refusal, put an end to the unfortunate woman. Another of these brutes split his wife's head open with an ax. To be sure he was crazed with liquor but that don't help matters any. Another shot a woman for refusing to live with him longer.
